

THE DODGE CITY TIMES.

OWENS & MENDENHALL, Publishers.
D. F. OWENS, Editor.

AN INDEPENDENT PAPER, PUBLISHED IN THE INTEREST OF FORD COUNTY AND DODGE CITY.

SUBSCRIPTION, ONE DOLLAR Per Annu SINGLE COPY, FIVE CENTS.

TWELFTH YEAR.

DODGE CITY, KANSAS, THURSDAY, JANUARY 19, 1888.

38

L. E. McGARRY,
Clerk Dist. Court.

F. B. APPERSON,
Notary Public.

D. S. SIMPSON & COOP.
DENTAL ROOMS
OVER "BEE HIVE"
STORE, Bridge St.
Gas Administered.
DODGE CITY, KAS.

J. W. WADE, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Dodge City, Kansas.
OFFICE—Over Webster & Bond's Drug Store.
RESIDENCE—Opposite Methodist Church.

H. H. Harrington. E. E. Smith
Harrington & Smith,
Attorneys-at-Law
Langton Block up stairs. DODGE CITY, KS

J. F. Franky. H. McGarry
Franky & McGarry,
Attorneys - at - Law.
Will make collections, practice in all the Courts and before the U. S. Land Office.
DODGE CITY, KANSAS.

John H. Finlay. B. F. Milton
Finlay & Milton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Front Street—Ground floor. DODGE CITY, KS

NERVIOUS DEBILITY.
A gentleman having been cured of Nervous Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Premature Decay, and all the evil effects of early indiscretion and youthful folly, and is anxious to make known to others the simple mode of SELF CURE. To those who wish and will give him their symptoms, he will send (free) by return mail, a copy of the receipt so successfully used in his case.
Address, in confidence, JAMES W.
PINKNEY, 42 Cedar St. N. Y.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.
The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease CONSUMPTION, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription used, which they will find a sure cure for CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS and all throat and lung MALADIES. He hopes all sufferers will try his Remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address, REV. EDWARD A. WIL-SON, Williamsburg, Kings County,
Nov. 24-ly

IMPLES. I will send (free) on receipt of a two cent stamp, a copy of a simple and effective Vegetable Balm
TAN, FRECKLES, PIN-PLES, DITCHES, BLACK HEADS, Etc., leaving the skin soft, clear and beautiful.
Touch with this compound the soft lily cheek, and the bright glow will best its virtues speak.
Also instructions for producing a luxuriant flow of hair on a bald head or smooth face. Address—A. D. BRYAN, 60 Ann St. New York. no-34-ly

DODGE CITY BUILDING & LOAN ASSOCIATION—Authorized chartered capital, $30,000. Loans money to stockholders at 8-10 per cent per annum. Principal and interest payable in monthly installments. The safest and best paying investment in the city. State meetings of stockholders 1st Tuesday of each month, at the building No. 1, south of railroad track. J. H.
Crawford, President; H. L. Siller, Vice Pres.; R. W.
Evans, Cash.; 1st St. Bk. Treas.; F. Milton, Atty. J. M. Bell at Sun Set Mills, Secy.

MILLIONS OF FRUIT TREES, SMALL FRUITS.
FOREST TREE SEEDINGS,
Shade Trees, Hedge Plants, &c. Forest Tree seeds and nuts, garden & field seeds.
Write for price list. D. W. COZAD, La Cygne Nursery, La Cygne, Mo. Kansas.

PUBLICATION SUMMINGS.
McKinley & Heliker, Partners, composed of J. B. McKinley & E. Heliker, Plaintiffs.
VS.
John W. Pool, Della Thomas and Cardy Thomas, Defendants.
In the District Court of Kansas, in and for Ford County.
The state of Kansas, to John W. Pool, Della Thomas and Cardy Thomas: You and each one of you, will hereby take notice that you have been sued by the plaintiffs above named, in the above named court, and that unless you answer or otherwise plead to the petition filed by plaintiffs in said court, on or before the 25th day of February, 1888, said petition will be taken as true and judgment rendered against you and each of you accordingly for the following sums of money, to-wit: $17.50, with 12 per cent. interest from May 1st, 1887; $17.50, with 12 per cent. interest from Nov.
1st, 1887, and $125.00, with 12 per cent. interest from Nov. 1st, 1888, and a decree of said court made for the foreclosure of a mortgage, which was duly executed and delivered to plaintiffs, by you, John W. Pool, on the northeast quarter section 9 in township 28, south, of range 23 west of the 6th p. m., in Ford county, Kansas, and an order of sale will be issued out of said court for the sale of said land and the proceeds of said sale to apply in payment of the aforesaid claims of plaintiffs.
FRANKY & MCGARRY
Atty's for Plaintiffs.

PUBLICATION NOTICE.
Corning & Doane, a Partnership composed of T. Corning & L. M. Doane, VS.
Perry Willden.
The State of Kansas, defendant: You will take notice that you have been sued by the above named plaintiffs, in the District Court of the State of Kansas, in Ford county, and that unless you answer the petition of the plaintiffs filed therein, on or before the first day of March, 1888, or the petition will be taken as true, and judgment will be rendered against you for the sum of two hundred and ten dollars with interest thereon at 7 per cent. per annum from April 7, 1886, on a certain promissory note signed by you, and the following description real property located in Ford county, Kansas, to-wit: The 26 1/2 sec. 10, township 27 range 26, will be sold to satisfy said debt and costs, by virtue of an attachment duly levied thereon.
FRANKY & MCGARRY
Atty's for Plf's.

W. E. Hendricks,
Attorney-at-Law.
DODGE CITY, KANSAS.

D. D. ROSE, M. D.
Physician and Surgeon.
OFFICE—Over Bee Hive Store.
RESIDENCE on Railroad Avenue, opposite High School Building.
DODGE CITY, KANSAS.

T. J. WRIGHT, M. D. J. J. PLUMER, M. D.
WRIGHT & PLUMER,
Physicians and Surgeons
OFFICE—Over Zimmermann's Hardware Store.
FRONT STREET, DODGE CITY, KAS.

Langton Hardware Company, GENERAL STOCK OF HARDWARE, Agricultural Implements, GARDEN, FIELD, FOREST AND TREE SEEDS, GLASS, PAINTS, OILS AND BRUSHES.
WAGON WOOD WORK AND BLACKSMITH IRON.
AGENTS FOR ECLIPSE WINDMILLS.
AGENTS FOR BAKE WAGONS.
A FULL LINE OF PUMPS.
CORNER OF CHESTNUT STREET AND SECOND AVENUE.
DODGE CITY, KAS.

W. C. SHINN,
DEALER IN
CITY AND SUBURBAN
REAL ESTATE
DODGE CITY, KAS.

W. C. SHINN,
DEALER IN
CITY AND SUBURBAN
REAL ESTATE
DODGE CITY, KAS.

W. C. SHINN,
DEALER IN
CITY AND SUBURBAN
REAL ESTATE
DODGE CITY, KAS.

ADDRESS

DELIVERED BY E. D. SWAN.

BEFORE PROTECTION LODGE NO. 172, A. O. U. W., AT THE PUBLIC INSTALLATION JAN. 20, 1888.

BRO. MASTER WORKMEN, LADIES AND GENTLE-MEN—I do not know any more appropriate title to an address on this occasion than "Protection."

There is always a little temptation among men to exaggerate the importance of the special pursuit or idea they represent. The farmers, mechanics, merchants, teachers, physicians and scientists are each inclined to claim that they represent the hinge upon which our civilization turns.

A little word of rhetoric of this kind does not harm, and in the long run corrects itself. The sociologist who looks on as a cold-headed spectator knows that all pursuits and industries are very nearly of equal importance. Each supplies an especial want. Each is a gem in the crown of civilization and helps to make its composit beauty.

Now while we are not inclined to derogate in the least the importance of any pursuit, profession, school or institution, we may safely claim for our Order pre-eminence in none respect. The farmer gives the nation bread. Without the merchant and mechanic the wheels of trade would rust on the iron rail, the ships rot in the harbor. The teacher helps to shape the brain of the coming generation.
The physician pilots us through the breakers of disease, and looks after the sanitation of the community. But our Order comes in a shape of religion when all these other agencies can no longer help; its beauty is only seen when painted like the rainbow, on the dark cloud of trouble, sickness, sorrow and bereavement.

The Masonic fraternity is the most ancient; originating at the building of King Solomon's temple, as many think, with the men who built the pyramids and the magnificent temples and palaces whose ruins are strewn along the Nile. There came a time when they were dispersed throughout the world, and traces of their architectural genius have been found in all lands. Like many others it was originally designed for the mutual aid and protection of the thousands of architects, builders and workmen upon those noble structures of a remote part of the medieval times. It has an imposing and antique ritual founded upon the historical, and is now regarded as a beautiful symbolism of that more noble and lasting architecture of life and character which we should all try and build.

But the Ancient Order of United Workmen, though not founded on the facts and events of so ancient and venerable a history, is more definitely built on the idea of financial help to all, regardless of station or condition in the hour of misfortune, sickness and death, while neglecting none of the eternal duties of its more ancient ancestor. It has more widely expanded the fraternal sentiment of mutual help and sympathy. It is really the mighty banyan tree whose drooping boughs have taken root in the earth and grown into the beautiful forest of fraternal aid that adorn our day. While each one has many beneficent excellencies, they all bear the hue and fragrance of our Order, the original tree.

The Ancient Order of United Workmen was founded by J. J. Upchurch, at Meadville, Pa., October 27th, 1868, being now a little over nineteen years old and was the first order to combine fraternity and life insurance.

It is an organization of pure benevolence and business, numbering now nearly two hundred thousand members embracing all classes, from the humble laborer up to the wealthy merchant.
It is now nineteen years since a few earnest-hearted, thoughtful, hard-working men, after long and patient consideration, adopted a plan by which a comparatively liberal sum of money might be secured to the family of a deceased member. Little did they anticipate the magnificent results of their action, for when you now behold the Order in the pride of its strong and vigorous success.

The A. O. U. W. is one of the proudest orders of the day. It is the pioneer society and parent of all existing institutions of a similar character, it being the first one to guarantee the payment of a fixed sum at the death of a member to the person or persons he had designated while living.

Among all the various systems of life insurance and co-operative aid associations known to the business world that is conducted by fraternal organizations is the cheapest and most natural plan.

The heavy commissions, salaries, advertisements, and many instances have been known to wreck them.
The A. O. U. W. is safe and much cheaper than any insurance company, and is so well and carefully managed that every member can know and thoroughly understand all about its workings.

It offers every man, however humble his station in life, an opportunity to provide for those dependent upon him against the losses and accidents to which all are liable; all things are uncertain in this world except death.

Man's best laid plans often miscarry. Families are daily bereft of support by the untimely end of the husband and father that brings with it suffering and privation. How, then, is the poor man, or the man of moderate means, whose income is only sufficient to meet his daily wants, to provide for his family against the needs that his strong arm had provided for in life? The answer is, that in the Ancient Order of United Workmen is found the relief that is better than any investment that can be made elsewhere.

There is no man so poor that he cannot avail himself of its benefits.

It is essentially a mutual institution and has the benefit of accumulated experiences of the ages, its name to the contrary notwithstanding.
It is adapted to modern ideas and habits; its sacred is predicated upon an enlightened and liberal public sentiment; its purposes and principles and a spontaneous approval among prudent people, and teachings are in keeping with the highest grades of morality. The noblest instincts of man's nature are found to be in perfect harmony with the whole structure of the order compelling respect and admiration from the best men in communities where its aims and objects are perfectly understood. Many of those who are conscientiously opposed to secret organizations have failed to discover anything objectionable in the rites and ceremonies of the order and accordingly large numbers have joined it, and given cheerful hearts and willing hands to its only cause. The order is necessarily a quiet character. The constitution and proceedings are published to the world, and the only secrets are those which protect the order from impostors, and which enable its members to recognize each other amidst the busy walks of life.

The Order gives a positive guarantee of two thousand dollars to the heirs of a deceased member, and while the order has disbursed millions of dollars, no weeping widow or helpless orphan has ever been compelled to resort to litigation to recover what they were entitled to, but it has been paid promptly and cheerfully. No other organization has such a record. No deductions of exorbitant attorney fees, and no tedious litigation upon order is necessarily provision in the policy, which is liable to cause a forfeiture of the insurance.

To the payment of this beneficiary, the brotherhood are individually and collectively bound. It officiates at the bedside of a sick brother and pledges itself to the mutual management and assistance of a brother and his family in every misfortune.

The small admission fee, the light assessments, and the long time between them, adapt this order to the wants of the masses.

Charity, Hope, and Protection are its motto, forming a triad of purpose, all men can subscribe to.

and devote their best energies to inculcate.

It has no distinctive political or religious opinion or denominational distinctions or preferences but all must believe in the existence of a God the Creator and Preserver of the Universe.

They recognize as a principle that usefulness to themselves and others is a duty which should be the constant care and aim of all men.

They strive earnestly to improve the morals, and intellectual and social condition of their members, so far as the members allow this influence to be exercised.

They endeavor by wholesome precepts, fraternal admonitions and substantial aid, to inspire a due appreciation of the stern realities and responsibilities of life.

It encourages temperance and sobriety, and does not seek risks among habitual drinkers or saloons keepers.

The risks it takes are selected with great care, and an unworthy person is promptly rejected.

The Ancient Order of United Workmen is an institution peculiarly suited to the working man, as its name would signify. It was organized especially for that class, and experience has shown that that class have been the most active, energetic workers for the benefit of the Order; that by that class of men it has been nourished and fostered until, in the short space of nineteen years, it has increased its membership from nothing up to about two hundred thousand. The aim of the Order is to furnish to each and every one of its members a sure protection in time of need, and to enable many who can not afford to pay the high premium demanded by life insurance companies, to leave their wives and families in comparatively good circumstances, and not destitute, as some of them would be should the head and father of the family die, after a long and lingering illness which has eaten up the little hoard of hard earned savings that had been laid by for a rainy day. In a better way can a man provide for a rainy day than by joining such an organization as this, which for the small sum of $1.00 per month, per month, paid into its treasury, will leave in case of death of one of its members the sum of $2,000, free from the clutches of grasping creditors, any claim of the law, $2,000 in hard cash paid to the widow as soon as it possibly can be after the death of the member, without disputes or law suits, or anything which would tend to make it for one moment a matter of doubt that the money will be paid. What man, if he is at all provident, is there, who would not want to lay by more than $1.50 per month for his wife and family in case anything should happen to him; and in what way could he invest it so as to yield a greater return than $2000.

Let us suppose a man to lay by $2.00 a month or $24.00 a year for ten years, that would only be $240.00 or a little more than one-tenth of what his family would receive were he to die one day after joining our Order.

I say it is a great and moral obligation on every man who has a family to provide for every contingency so far as in his power, there is no one among you who would not say, "I will provide for my family while I live." Then why should you not also say, "I will provide for my family by my death, should I be so unfortunate as to die," and we must all die some time.

But let us turn away from this comparatively gloomy view of the question, and let us consider the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brotherhood existing between them, that stranger and themselves, and because such is the teachings of the Order, that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be,
either in the United States or Canada, he could find
friends, hundreds of them, who, though he is a
perfect stranger to them, are willing to take him
by the hand and welcome him; and aid and assist
him, if need be? And why do they do this? Simply because they recognize the bond of brother-
hood existing between them, that stranger and them-
selves, and because such is the teachings of the Order,
that they do it without stopping to ask the reason
why.

Man is by nature a social animal, and has been,
ever since the time when Eve was made, to keep
him company and get him into trouble by making
him the peer of stolen goods, and let us consider
the Order as regards its living members. One of
its greatest and highest objects is to endeavor to
foster a spirit of fraternity, a protection amongst
its members, so that one of them can never say:
"I am alone in the world." "I have no friends."

It is not a grand thought that if one of us should
be driven by the storms of adversity to a strange
city; that there in that city, wherever it might be, either in the United States or Canada,